

Dear all,

As part of the activities to commemorate the Day of Scientific Renaissance of Africa, the School of Information and Communication Studies is organising a panel discussion on the topic “Responses to ChatGPT: Perspectives from Ghanaian Academics, Media and Information Technology Practitioners” as follows:

Date: Wednesday, June 14, 2023

Time: 1:30 PM

Venue: University of Ghana Balme Library Seminar Room.

Synopsis

In November 2022, a new kid arrived on the block, ChatGPT, created by the San Francisco-based company OpenAI. For those of us who are technophobes, it was clear that this was something we had to get used to. At the School of Information and Communication Studies housed in the College of Education, its potential negative and positive impact on both communication and education is not lost on us. As part of activities to celebrate the Day of Scientific Renaissance of Africa in UG's 75th year, we are going to discuss and better understand what ChatGPT will mean for us in our work as students, academics, providers and consumers of media content and Information and Technology practitioners.

All members of the University community are cordially invited.

The poster features a blue background with a map of Africa and circuitry patterns. It includes the University of Ghana logo and the School of Information and Communication Studies name. Four speakers are listed with their photos: Prof. Akosua K. Darkwah (Dean, SICS, UG), Mr. Godfred Akoto Boafo (Citi FM), Dr. Karim Awudu (Dept. of Info Studies, UG), and Dr. Simon-Peter Aheto (Dept. of DE, UG). The event details are provided in a bold, orange font.

UNIVERSITY OF GHANA
SCHOOL OF INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATION STUDIES

Commemorates
DAY OF SCIENTIFIC RENAISSANCE OF AFRICA

THEME: Nurturing Resilience: Adopting Technology, Embracing Humanism

PANEL DISCUSSION TOPIC:
Responses to ChatGPT: Perspectives from Ghanaian Academics, Media and Information Technology Practitioners

DATE: 14th June, 2023-13:30GMT
VENUE: UG Balme Library Seminar Room

Prof. Akosua K. Darkwah
Dean, SICS, UG

Mr. Godfred Akoto Boafo
Citi FM

Dr. Karim Awudu
Dept. of Info Studies, UG

Dr. Simon-Peter Aheto
Dept. of DE, UG